PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

The makers of the Ivory Soap have been engaged in the manufacture of Soaps for over fifty years, and the "Ivory" is the happy result of their long experience, and is unquestionably the soap to be used by all who value the advice (quoted below) of Ellen H. Richards, Instructor in Chemistry, Woman's Laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who says, "In the purchase of soap, it is "safest to choose the make of some well known and long established "firm who have a reputation to lose if their product is not good."

A WORD OF WARNING.
There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SELECT STORY.

OLD MRS. DILL.

When all the other women in Camp Paradise went away old Mrs. Dill stayed on.

"I come to the mountings in '59," she often said, "an' I've lived in the mountings ever sence, an' it ain't the fust time I've been left the only woman they was in a minin' camp. I've lived long es a year 'thout seein' the face of no woman 'ceptin' my own when I looked in a bit of lookin' glass. I was the fust woman in Camp Paradise, an' I reckon I'll be the last to leave 'er."

Her many years of life in the "mountings" had told on Mrs. Dill. She was bent and gaunt, with a leathery, wrinkled face and bony, calloused hand. Her face and voice—her whole manner—was masculine. The few graces that old age vouchsafes its choosen ones had not been given Mrs. Dill. She was uncouth and repelling in appearance, the result of years and years of struggling against adverse fates amid the demoralizing influences of mining camp life.

"They ain't no kind o'roughing it that I ain't used to," she often said. "Lord! if I ain't roughed it I don't know who has. They ain't a gulch in this part o' the mountings I ain't been in or a trail I ain't been over. I've lived in tents and log cabins and sometimes under nothin' but the trees, for most thirty years. Dill he never once struck it rich in all that time, and he died poorer 'n he was when we come out here from old Missouri.

"We'd a good farm back there, but Dill he got the gold minin' craze, an' we sold out an' come out here with an ox team an' put our farm into a hole in the ground, ez a body might say, an' we've never got it out ag'in. Talk 'bout hard times and roughin' it, good Lord! you might say so if you'd went through all I have!"

Mr. Dill had been dead six years, leaving his widow homeless and penniless. Some of the miners in the camp in which old man Dill died offered to raise a fund to send her back to her friends if she cared to go, but she had declined the offer.

"I've lived in the mountings too long to live any place else now," she said; "and, anyhow, I hain't got no friends to go to. I'll stay here and rough it out to the end."

She had been among the first comers to Camp Paradise in the days of that camp's short lived prosperity. It was supposed then that the camp would become a second Leadville. Two or three promising strikes had been made, and wily speculators had got up a carefully planned "boom" solely in their own interests. In one summer nearly three thousand people came to Camp Paradise. Most of them went away again before the year was out.

Old Mrs. Dill came wearily up the steep and narrow track one day, walking slowly behind an aged and diminutive burro, which carried her worldly all on its back. She began her Camp Paradise career as a laundress. Some of the miners had known her in other camps, and a number of them got together one day and built her a little cabin, and afterward gave her their rough garments to wash and mend. They paid her well and her wants were few.

When nearly all the other cabins in the gulch were deserted, and when all the little white tents had been folded up and gone away with their owners, Mrs. Dill stayed on. The men rather liked her for doing so. It showed a certain loyalty to the "old camp" and a faith in it that pleased them, for those who stayed were firm in the conviction that there were great treasures hidden away in the secret depths of the granite mountain towering above the little town.

And they were determined to find those treasures; so about twenty-five of them made common property of their few worldly possessions and moved into a long, low, rambling house of logs, that had once been a hotel, for the winter. They did more, they gave old Mrs. Dill a home with them.

There was at one end of the building a little room for which the men had no special use, and this they made very comfortable for "old Mother Dill," as many of them called her. In return Mrs. Dill kept their rough garments in order, assisted about the cooking and made herself useful in other ways. There was not another woman within twenty-five miles of Camp Paradise, but Mrs. Dill did not care for that.

"I'm used to it," she said.

The winter set in early in Camp Paradise. There was snow on the ground in October, and early in November the mountain slopes and gulches were covered under a foot or more of snow that only the suns of the coming June would melt.

The men could do little prospecting, and nothing toward developing the claims they had staked out during the summer. They spent most of their time in hunting and visiting the adjoining camps, none of which were more prosperous than Camp Paradise. The men were idle in all of them, and the natural consequence was that they spent much of their time in gambling and drinking and in the carousals common to mining camps.

It was a stormy night in December that all the men in Camp Paradise sat around the great fire of pine knots in the broad fireplace at one end of the cabin.

Old Mrs. Dill had gone to her little room at the end of the cabin, and the men were enjoying the rollicking songs most miners know. Some of them were playing poker, an upturned barrel serving for a table. The wind blew cold and fierce, and fine, hard dashes of snow beat against the little windows on either side the door.

As early as 8 o'clock some of the men began to talk about "turning in" for the night. Several of them were shaking up the blankets and skins on their rude bunks when, without knock or other sound, the door opened suddenly and a man came in. The men around the fireplace turned their faces quickly towards the visitor, and one of them said:

"Well, Jack Downey, what in the thunder brings you clean from down in Camp Fairview away up to old Prosperity on such a night as this? Come to the fire an' thaw out, man, an' give an account o' yerself."

The man, tall and sallow and grizzled, laughed grimly as he came forward.

"Come to invite you to a little party down to Fairview—Jed Judson's dead!"

"Naw!"

"Jed Judson?"

"Ye don't mean it?"

"What?"

"Jed—Judson—dead?"

The speakers all spoke at once, the poker players dropped their cards, some of the men rose hastily to their feet.

"Whatever ailed Jed?"

"What ailed him?" repeated the man from Camp Fairview; "he was well an' hearty as you and I be three hours ago, when an ornery cuss from Poverty Gulch that Jed caught cheatin' at cards, and told him of it, put a bullet in 'im—that's what ailed Jed."

"An' ye hung the feller that did it?" asked Si Sharpe.

"We ain't yit, but we cal'late on doin' it 'fore mornin', and that's the party I come up to give you a bid to. Thought ye'd fell slighted if none o' you got a pull at the rope that'll swing the chap that killled Jed—a whiter man'n Jed never drawed the breath o'life."

"Yer right thar," said Si Sharpe, heartily; "an' it'll do me good to git a pull of that rope when you git the feller that shot Jed to the other end of it. Who is he, anyhow?"

"Don't know. They don't any of the boys know, an' he won't tell whar he come from nor who he is; but we all know whar he's goin' to, an' that mighty durned quick, too. He's a youngish sort of a chap, not more'n 30 with three fingers off'n one hand and a scar over his left eye. We reckon his name's Hobbs—Henry Hobss—anyhow he's got a ring on with that name on it, an' that's the name on some letters we tuk from 'im, an' also on a big, old fashioned silver watch he's got. How many of you going down to the hangin with me? It'll come off at midnight.'

Nearly every man in the cabin rose to his feet, and while all were pulling on hats and coats the door of old Mrs. Dill's room suddenly opened and Mrs. Dill herself, ghastly and trembling, with her thin gray hair falling to her bony shoulders, walked swiftly across the room, locked the door and stood with her back to it, her bleared eyes dim with tears and her shrivelled lips trembling.

"Boys" she said, in her shrill cracked voice, "ye ain't goin' down to Camp Fairview to hang that feller—I tell ye, ye a'int! Ye shan't!" She drew an old pistol from beneath her apron as she spoke and held it aloft with a trembling bony arm and wrinkled fingers. "I'll shoot the first feller that tries to go out this door. I'll do it, I'll"—Her head dropped suddenly to her breast, her arm to her side and the pistol to the floor. She put both her bony hands to her face and sobbed aloud. With her head still bent low, she said;

"Boys, lookee here. Some of you hev knowed me fer twenty year, an' ye knowed my man that's dead an' gone. There's men in this cabin that I've fed an' keered for when they was homeless an' sick. In all the twenty-nine year that Mis' Dill has lived in the mountings the latch string o' her cabin's hung out free to all. Nobody wa'n't ever turned away, as some of ye mighty well know. I've gi'n favors wherever I could, an' ain't never asked none back. I've had my tribbylations—God knows I have!—an' the wust of 'm all has come to-night; fer boys, that man yer goin' out ter hang is—is—my boy—the only baby I ever had, an' it's ten long year since I seen him!

"Dill wa'n't my fust husband. His name was Hobbs an' the boy was named after 'im—Henry Hobbs. Some o' you may mind o' seeing him fifteen and twenty year ago at our cabin down in Cinnamon Gulch—a purty, black eyed, curley headed boy. He got that scar down in the gulch, and them three fingers came off in a bear trap Dill had set and the boy fell into it. He allus was a venturesome boy an, never stopped at nothin'. Some of ye mind the big excitement they was down in cinnamon Gulch fifteen year ago, when they was saloon under ev'ry tree an' they wa'n't no such a thing as law an' order. It wa'n't to be wonered at that a-many a boy went astray then, an' my Henry was among 'em. He hadn't never had a chance to be diff'rent. He didn't know how decent folks lived, an' I—I—wa'n't fit to learn him, cause I didn't know how myself. He took to gamblin' an' to drink, with plenty to coax the boy on, an' when the excitement died away he ran off an' I ain't ever heard of 'im but once since; an' he's the man they want ye to go an' help hang. Ye won't do it, boys, will ye?

Her voice had changed to one of earnest entreaty and her old apron was held to her streaming eyes.

"Boys" she added, "couldn't ye git 'em to give the boy another chance? Tell 'em he's my boy. Bring 'im here to me an' let me go away with 'im. Can't ye, boys? Can't ye do it for the sake of old times? Go an' bring my boy to me. Hang me if you must have a life for the one my boy took. I won't say a word ag'in that; only let me see my boy first."

Every man in the cabin filed silently out of the room and disappeared in the darkness, going hurriedly down the trail. It was almost daybreak when they came back, silent and stern, a white faced, slender, trembling man with them, his arms still bound and the fear and horror of death still in his face.

Old Mrs. Dill met them at the door. They led her son to her little room and left her alone with him.

"Ye'd better be ready to start by daylight," was all Si Sharpe said as he closed the door of the little room, and went back to the fireplace where the other men sat looking silently into the glowing coals.

The next day had hardly dawned when the gray haired old woman and the tall, handsome young man came from the little room, and, with a brief good-by to the men of Camp Paradise, went slowly down the trail to meet the outgoing stage.

"They'll be all right," said Si Sharpe. "But there ain't another person on God's earth they'd give that chap up to but old Mis' Dill, an' I've an idee he'll hang yit some day spite of her."

But there lives to-day in one of the coast towns of the Pacific in California a man of wealth and influence, a good citizen and an honored man, who has but lately buried his mother, a white haired old lady, to whom he was said to be the most dutiful and affectionate of sons. On the plain white stone at her grave is the name—"Margaret Dill."—Rex in New York Mercury.

Benton Institute.

The Institute held at this place on Feb. 8 and 9 proved an entire success. Prof. Waller and Albert were with us, and helped to make the Institute an interesting one.

The Friday evening entertainment consisted of recitations by Miss Anna Edwards and Miss Lena Cole. Prof. Waller was then introduced, and interested the audience for an hour and twenty minutes, with a description of his voyage to the East. It was knowledge not found in books.

The Institute commenced on Saturday at 9.30 o'clock, with devotional exercises conducted by Prof. Waller, and singing by the Institute. An essay on language was then read by Miss Gearheart, followed by a recitation by Miss Maggie Tubbs, and this by a very good address by Prof. Waller. Knowing, and not doing, amounts to but little. Persevering an essential thing.

After singing "The Lord's Prayer" by some little children, were recitations by Teresa Everett and Maud McHenry. A declamation by Peter Dilldine was followed with recitations by Hattie Karns, Stella Hirlinger, and Willie Dildine. An excellent talk on "Methods of Teaching Primary Numbers" by Prof. Albert. Use objects, boxes of saw dust, pebbles, wood splints, shoe pegs, measures etc. Principles never change methods do and should. A B C sung by little children.

In the afternoon a large number were present. The Supt. opened the Institute with a talk on History, followed by a dialogue "A broken heart," by Charlie Coleman, Elmer Davis, Lilian Kline, and Ella OBrian after which, an address was delivered by Dr. McHenry, on "Compolsory Education." It should become compulsory for children to be sent to school. A recitation, by Daisy McHenry, was followed with an essay on reading by Miss Callender, after which, was a class in "Concert Reading." A few remarks were given by Mr. Burton Parks, teacher in Luzerne county, followed with a well delivered recitation by Blanche Kase. Singing "I'm the child of a King," was followed by an excellent address on Morals in Our Public Schools," by Prof. Albert. A teacher should cultivate a habit of cleanliness and neatness, and should teach the pupils the same.

A recess of ten minutes was followed by an oration "John Brown," which was well delivered by Clarence Butt after which, was a splendid recitation by Zell Krickbaum. A nicely acted dialogue by Cora Kline and her brother was followed by a cunning recitation by Bennie McHenry. A song by some little children, was followed with a good little recitation by Ordess Chapins, and this by a duet, sung by Anna and Myron Edwards.

"How we tried to lick the teacher," a recitation by W. W. Hirlinger, was followed with a recitation by Bessie Appleman, and a dialogue, A Rumpus in a family," by Warren and Joie Kerns, Ella O'Brian, Georgie McHenry, and Edna Hirleman. Then a recitation by Eva McHenry, was followed with a declamation, The Brother's Fool," by Christina Hirlinger.

Supt. Grimes made a few remarks to the school directors concerning the conditions of the school houses, after which the Institute came to a close. All seemed delighted with the Institute, and many valuable hints were thrown out by the instructors, which we hope will be long remembered, and put in practical use.

We tender our thanks to our worthy Supt. for his assistance, and those who came to help us.

SECRETARY.

Among the Azores.

UNDER THE SHADOW OF PICO—A SEMI-TROPICAL PEOPLE—THE WONDERFUL CHALDEIRA—DONKEYS—A PORTUGUESE BALL.

CITY OF HORTA, FAYAL.

In my boyhood days I read a good deal about fairy-land, and was half inclined to pronounce it all a fiction. I never expected to come very near to such scenes in the reality, and was not prepared for the surprises that the islands of the Azores had in store for me. On our approach to the group that lies clustering in mid-atlantic, the varied scenes of tropical beauty seemed to rise from the ocean like an enchantment.

Although lying in the latitude of New York, about two thousand miles to the eastward, the Azores are rarely visited by Americans for pleasure or for trade. They form a group of islands, volcanic in origin and delightfully picturesque, that have been inhabited for several centuries by the Portuguese colonists and their descendents, and are nine in number.

When our good ship swung round the headline and glided into the harbor of Horta, on the eastern side of Fayal, the principal island of the group, a most bewitching scene sprang into being. The waters of the crescent-shaped bay were outspread in tranquil beauty. A few steamers and ships were at anchor. The shores of Fayal seemed to rise from the water's edge, with a gradual ascent to lofty hills, whose slopes were covered with luxuriant vegetation and orange groves, within white-walled enclosures.

At the foot of the hills, whose green slopes are lifted above the housetops, the city of Horta runs along the shore, with the whitened walls and the red roofs of the houses standing out in clear relief. Across the bay on another island Mount Pico looms up in majestic proportions, eight thousand feet above the sea, with its summit wreathed in clouds and covered with snow.

The contrasts are bewildering—the snow crowned mountains, the tropical verdure of the islands, the blue waters of the harbor, and the cheery little city on the shore! I cannot begin to tell you of the wonderful transformation scenes that occur in this Azorean climate, how Pico at one time appears in clearest outline, and again is suddenly hidden from view by a dense bank of clouds and fog.

The principal business street of Horta extends along the water-front, and contains many substantial buildings. The streets generally are narrow, but well-paved, clean and orderly. The place has a population of about ten thousand, mostly dusky Portuguese, whose costumes, customs and habits have come down to them from remote times.

They are a shiftless and indolent people, and live with limited comforts in small houses, that are built of blocks of lava, with white-washed walls and red tiled roofs. With a fertile soil and a mild climate, the means of livelihood are so easily obtained that the ways of the sluggard seem to be adopted by common consent. So far as I may judge, the only energy displayed is in fruit growing and fishing.

Every householder has an orange grove attached to his place, and no higher compliment can be paid to the owner than to help one's self to all the fruit he may be able to eat. Even the Hotel Fayalense, where we found a generous hospitality, has an orchard of orange trees laden with the golden fruit. I dare say that the landlord himself was astounded at the feat of one of the officers who, without any qualms of conscience or disarrangement of physiological functions, succeeded in eating two dozen oranges at one sitting.

One is constantly jostled in the streets by loaded donkeys, lazy men and boys, who require the greater part of the narrow passage-way, as they jog along to and from market. The matron glides by most demurely clad in a capote, that covers the head with a hood of immense size and hangs in drapery to the feet. She is the embodiment of prim dignity, and looks as though she might have walked out of some picture of the middle ages.

The market women with baskets on their heads, and black-eyed girls with vessels of water from the springs, are equally suggestive of ancient times.

There is much that is interesting about the donkey, that threads the streets with the air of the greatest unconcern. He is the veritable beast of burden in the Azores, somewhat larger than the ordinary variety of his species, and is used for carrying packs as well as for riding. A thick pad rests upon his back, and to this is attached a wooden frame shaped like a sawbuck, that serves for a saddle.

You are constantly urged by boys to take a donkey, with the persistency of a civilized hack driver. Now for a pleasure trip, perhaps to the mountains, into the country, anywhere on the island! There are enough donkeys and boys to go around, whose services may be secured for a nominal sum.

You sit upon this model saddle, not astride, but with your feet unsupported by stirrups dangling at the side, and even without bridle and reins. A boy trots along by your side and leads the donkey, or as is more commonly the case, belabors him soundly at regular intervals, and goads him on between times with a very sharp stick. As a result, for a few moment, a fair gait is attained. It is well, however, to cling firmly to the pommel of the saddle, for without warning one is in a perpetual danger of finding himself thrown to the ground.

Among the objects of interest to be seen in Fayal, to which visitors are pretty sure to be directed, the most wonderful of all is the Chaldeirs, an extinct volcano, within riding distance from the city. For a few miles the way leads through pleasant groves, and makes a gradual ascent toward the interior of the island. The road becomes more broken and diffcult, and in time exceedingly steep. After two hours of tedious riding our party dismounts, and leaving the donkeys in care of a guard, proceeds on foot to the top of the mountain, accompanied with guides.

The volcano is six thousand feet high, and is sometimes called the "nest of the clouds," because at night the vapory masses often settle down in the crater and in the early hours of the day come rolling over the edge and down the sides. As we ascended a dense fog enveloped us, and a rainstorm came pouring down in torrents. Hesitating, the guides urged us on, and in a few moments we emerged from the storm. We were above the clouds, with nothing below us visible.

On the summit a grand sight is revealed. The crater has a circumference of six miles, and is two thousand feet deep with almost perpendicular walls. It is no easy matter to clamber down into the cavern, clinging to the bushes and shrubs for support.

The shell of the crater, of circular form and two miles in diameter, rose above and around us, on which the sky seemed to rest, making an impressive scene. A little lake slumbered at our feet, fire-scarred rocks lay strewn about, and a painful stillness was in the air.

On our return to Horta, the same fog belt was passed in descending the mountain, and the same rainstorm was encountered. Our donkeys were found awaiting us, on whose back we made our entrance into the city rather the worse for our experience, forming a ludicrous spectacle. With saturated clothing and with no change of garments nearer than the ship in the harbor, the last resource, and the only alternative, was to retire to the hotel beds while our clothes were drying by the kitchen fire.

In contrast with the experiences of mountain-climbing and exploration, were the scenes of a native ball-room in Horta, during our stay in the city, at which the officers of the Juniata were honored guests. The fact that the Portuguese is the society language, and the greater one that the American representatives were conversant only with their own vernacular, did not destroy the pleasures of the evening. The ladies were becomingly dressed, many of them were pretty, and most of them danced with charming grace and dignity.

The customs are a little novel to occidental minds. The ladies were assembled in the ball-room at a seemly hour, where in silence or engaged in conversation they waited for the dance to begin, perhaps wondering if we Americans were good looking and good dancers. The men were gathered in the ante-room, and at the arrival of the hour of dancing entered the ball-room and were presented to the ladies.

With lively airs of music the dancing began to the apparent delight of all. After completing the dance, the ladies were seated and the gentlemen retired to appear again as before. Although the hours of the night passed away rapidly, and the small talk with one's fair partner was out of the question, the naval gallant, it must be confessed, is not likely to forget his dance with the black-eyed damsels of Horta, an honor which was given as a compliment to the American man-of-war on the eve of her departure from the Azorean port.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, Feb. 18, 1889

According to the promise Chairman Mills has reported the Senate tariff bill to the House. He accompanied it with a resolution declaring the bill to be unconstitutional and directing the clerk of the House to return it to the Senate. The resolution will be voted on early this week, and its passage is expected, which will dispose of the Senate Tariff bill. There has been, in the last two days, three other Revenue bills reported to the House. Mr. McMillan, from the Ways and Means committee has reported a bill which is the original Mills bill, with the cotton, metal and chemical schedules left out. From the same committee Mr. Breckinridge has reported a compromise measure, which provides for free wool, free tin-plate, the repeal of the tobacco tax, and the same woolen and worsted schedules as the Mills bill. Mr. Randall, from the committee on appropriations has reported the Cowles internal revenue bill, which repeals the entire tobacco tax and modifies other features of the internal revenue law.

All of these different measures from Democrats does not speak well for the unity of the party. A caucus is to be held to-night when an attempt will be made to agree upon something, but the outlook is not assuring.

The clerk of the House has been authorized by a resolution of the House to employ four additional clerks for the remainder of the session. This is preparing for the rush of bills that always get crowded through in the last days of a session.

The House has given way to the Senate and New Mexico will be dropped from the "Omnibus" bill, and North and South Dakota, Montana and Washington admitted by Presidential proclamation. That is all right as far as it goes, but I cannot see why New Mexico has not as good a right to come in as the rest.

The Senate committe on territories will this week report the Oklahoma bill, and its early passage is generally regarded as certain.

The Treasury Department paid out on account of pensions over 20,000,000 during the first half of this month.

Who says Republics are ungratefull Representative Matson who is chairman of the House committee on pensions, and who was recently the Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana, retires after the fourth of March. As a token of esteem, his colleagues on that committee have presented him with a handsome French clock. The presentation speech was made by Representative Gallinger, a Republican, who expects to get elected to the Senate from New Hampshire.

The Senate got ahead of the House in passing the bill retiring Gen. Rosecrans ("old Rosy") with the rank of Brigadier-General.

Four hundred policemen are to be appointed in this city to protect us from the Republicans that will attend Harrison's inauguration. And it would be impossible even now to throw a stone in the streets of Washington without striking a Republican candidate for some Federal office.

Mr. Coleman, lately Commissioner of Agriculture, has been confirmed by the State for his new position, and on Friday took the oath and assumed the duties of Secretary of Agriculture.

He has received and is still receiving congratulations, personally, by mail and by wire.

Although Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson has been nominated Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, he has no expectations of being confirmed. A few important nominations have recently been confirmed by the Senate but there is no hope of anything better during the eleven working days now left to the present Congress.

The Senate has passed a resolution instructing the committee on commerce to consider the expediency of the Government purchasing the Dismal Swamp Canal with a view to making it a highway between the Chesapeake Bay and the North Carolina sounds.

Although the session is so nearly ended the introduction of a new bill is a frequent occurrence. Among the latest is one to establish a national system to farmer's institutes, to be devoted to the accumulation and dissemination of information of practical value to farmers. Another which I neglected to mention while speaking of the territorial bills, is a separate bill for the admission of New Mexico, offered in the House, and which Mr. Springer and other leading Democrats will endeavor to rush through.

Mrs. Cleveland held her last public reception on Saturday afternoon, and in spite of a cold dreary rain nearly 2,000 people attended.

The ordinary cough remedies as a rule are vile compounds containing opium which deranges the system. Not so with Dr. Shattuck's Helianthus, the Rapid Oxygen cure for coughs and consumption. It stops a cough by mentrolizing the poisons and healing the irritation.

Six months ago Mrs. Stookey, who lives on First street, was blind, with the prospect of remaining so forever. A recent operation by Dr. Brown fully restored her sight. Com. { MISS MAUD RUNYON, MISS JENNIE STILES, MISS DORA NILES, MR. WILL MERCER, MR. WILL BROWER

Mrs. Lizzie N. Sauder, wife of J. M. Sauder, Superintendent of the Bloomsburg Desk Factory, died at her home on Fifth street Thursday of last week, aged forty-four years six months and twenty-three days. She was a victim of that dread disease, consumption with which she had long been a sufferer. She leaves a family of six young children to mourn her loss.

Funeral services were held at the residence Sunday afternoon, and the remains were taken to Harrisburg for interment Monday.

Our readers will be glad to know that on Saturday evening, March 2nd, an opportunity will be given them to hear, at the Opera House, Mrs. Margaret Custer Calhoun, the gifted Elocutionist, whose recitations in behalf of the Grand Army Post in this town a year ago were so much enjoyed. A large audience will doubtless greet her on this occasion. Mrs. Calhoun recites with grace and power and rarely one hears an Elocutionist who displays so perfectly the result of intelligent culture, added to personal gifts of voice and manner.

Musical selections will be rendered between the recitations.

Tickets 50 cts. Reserved seats. 35.

A correspondent sends us the following particulars of the death of Mrs. John Kinsley whose decease occurred February 11:

Mrs. Ida Kinsley was a daughter of John Roberts of Jackson township. She was 21 years six months and 11 days old, and had been married to Mr. John Kinsley 51 days. The circumstances connected with her death are as follows: She was visiting her brother near Asbury, and on the morning of the 11th of February about eleven o'clock she went upstairs to make the beds; her sister-in-law went into the cellar to get potatoes for dinner and when she came out heard Ida give a scream and running upstairs found her lying on the bed on her back; she raised her up but Mrs. Kinsley only gasped twice and passed away.

Attempts were made by burglars Monday evening to burglarize several of the business places of this place. One of them was captured in the rear of Keller's store, where he was attempting to pry open the door, by the night watchman, A. V. Hower, who soon brought him to terms with the aid of his revolver. Mr. Hower also saw a suspicious character at I. W. Hartman's and another at Lockards, but both escaped him. Housel's shoe store was broken into the same night and the safe opened, but no money obtained. The captured burglar was taken before Squire Jacoby in the morning for a hearing and was bound over to May court for trial. A number of tramps who had been lodged in the lockup the previous night were also taken before the squire, and were allowed to go on condition that they would leave town.

On last Saturday evening at the invitation of William Yost, a large number of Grand Army Boys gathered at his residence on Catharine Street, and participated in a sumptuous banquet of all the delicacies of the season; it being the 68th anniversary of Nathan B. Fowler, his father-in-law, and a complete surprise to him.

At the same time the Grand Army Boys presented their comrade Mr. Fowler with a handsome rocking chair, as a token of their esteem, in which we hope he will spend many happy hours, in his declining years, thinking of his service in defence of his country, and his faithful comrades.

The banquet was prepared by the daughters of Mr. Fowler, who displayed a knowledge of the science of cooking, which many good housekeepers might be envious of. After the supper the boys enjoyed a good Havana, a substitute for a whiff of their old army pipe, and then spun the usual army yarns, until a late hour, when all repaired to their homes happy, to dream of the cannons deafening roar, when they fought, bled and died for their country, in the days of yore.

Wedding Bells.

February the 14th, Mr. Horace G. Supplee, the courteous and obliging Manager of the Bloomsburg Farmers' Produce Exchange Store, was wedded to Miss Elnora V., the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryfogle.

One hundred and thirty guests were in attendance.

Among whom were Rev. Manhart of Bloomsburg, Jno. R. Gould the handsome druggist from Berwick, Dr. Jolly of Orangeville, and many other friends and relatives too numerous to mention.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen were Miss Lidia Rabert and Miss Annie Supplee, Mr. John T. Crossley and Mr. Winthrop Bryfogle.

Precisely at twelve o'clock, as Prof. Niles, of the Bloomsburg Normal School, began playing a wedding march, the bridal party filed down the stair-way into the parlor and gracefully took their position under a beautiful evergreen arch decorated with natural flowers.

A brief and appropriate ceremony was then pronounced by Rev. W. T. Galloway of the Bloomsburg Baptist church.

The bride wore a cream Bengaline silk, made with a long train, bridal veil and natural flowers.

The bridesmaids were attired in cream cashmere decorated with natural flowers.

Here the writer confesses his inability to describe the bounteous marriage feast which followed. Even the tongue that tasted cannot tell how good it was.

Amid showers of rice and slippers, the merry laughter and good wishes of all friends the happy couple departed at 2:24 P. M. on the D. L. & W. R. R. for the East, expecting to arrive in New York City about nine o'clock.

The presents were numerous and costly, and such as are usually given on like occasions.

There was a handsome china dinner set, a beautiful hall stand, a comfortable rocker, two family Bibles, an ebony clock, lovely paintings and engravings, silverware and table linen in abundance and many other articles both useful and ornamental.

There is a greater demand upon the kidneys to eliminate poisons in the Spring than at any other time. Dr. Shattuck's Kidney Specific, the only known cure for Brights Disease, will save many lives this Spring.

Election in Bloomsburg.

The election on Tuesday passed off quietly in this town. The chief contest was for President of Council, until a movement was commenced urging the name of Joshua Fetterman as member of Council, and casting 6 votes for him; this caused a combination of voters upon Fred Schwinn, and largely increased his vote to the detriment of both Hiram Palmer and Isaac E. Yost. There were 735 votes cast, against 652 votes a year ago and 947 at last fall's election. The following is the vote in full. Those marked with a * are elected.

Torpidity of the liver, and disorders of the stomach and bowels, cause headache and the failure of all desire for food. Ayer's Cathartic Pills stimulate the action of the stomach, liver, and bowels, cure headache, and restore the appetite.

Mrs. Mary Devereux died at the home of her parents, in Suedesboro, N. J., Saturday of last week, Feb. 16th, of typhoid fever. She was the daughter of Elijah Bower who formerly lived at the Sanitarium in this place. Last May she was married to Washington Devereux, who also resided in this place a few years ago. Mr. Devereux is engaged in business in Cuba, and Mary was living with her parents during his temporary absence. About four weeks ago she was taken with typhoid fever, and had sufficiently recovered to leave her sick bed and be moved down stairs. A relapse occurred and she gradually sank to rest. She was an amiable, intelligent and christian young woman, for a time a teacher in the Normal School, and leaves many sincere friends to remember her decease with sorrow, relieved with the knowledge that she has entered upon a life of perfect happiness.

Let quality, not quantity, be the test of a medicine. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the concentrated extract of the best and purest ingredients. Medical men everywhere recommend it as the surest and most economical blood medicine in the market.

Two Personally-Conducted Pleasure Tours to Florida via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces two personally-conducted pleasure tours to Florida, to be run on February 26th and March 11th. These dates take in the choicest portion of the winter and early spring, and are exceptionally desirable on that account. The parties will be carried by special trains of Pullman Sleeping Cars under the supervision of the Tourist Agent and Chaperon. The route is by the Atlantic Coast Line, passing through Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Charleston, and Savannah. Round-trip tickets, including sleeping-car berth and meals en route in both directions, will be sold from New York at $48.00, Philadelphia $46.00, and at proportionate rates from other stations. The special train will leave New York 6:30 P. M., stopping at Newark, Elizabeth, Trenton, Philadelphia 9:20 P. M., stopping at Chester, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington. The round-trip tickets will admit of a two weeks' stay in Florida, and will be good for use only on special trains in both directions.

For itineraries, tickets, and sleeping car berths, apply to agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, or address S. W. F. Draper, Tourist Agent, 849 Broadway, New York, or 205 Washington Street, Boston.

The Oldest Man in Central Pennsylvania.

John Cramer is believed to be one hundred and eleven years old, though the record of his birth is hardly definite. Mr. Cramer on the eighteenth inst on making a false step on entering his house on Eighth street in Bloomsburg broke his thigh bone at the hip joint. At the time of the accident he was enjoying excellent health. That day he said to his grand son he wanted to go to Nanticoke and work in the mines. For a number of years past he has been living with his daughter Mrs. John Cooper. In early winter Mrs. Cooper died leaving at her home two daughters and three sons and a grand child, with their grandfather, who is now prostrate upon his bed and will probably be an object of kind and charitable consideration for the remainder of his days, which he is greatly entitled to. I have known him for twenty-five years for which time his hearing has been greatly impaired which makes it difficult to converse with him. I have observed however in those years in my frequently visiting him at his son-in-law's that when other members of the family cease work to entertain a caller this old man would continue to bend his back in industrious work and seemed to perform as much as a stout man of younger years.

The first clause may be revoked under the regulation of the Water Company, in reference to revocation of water supply.

Second. The Water Company shall supply without charge for a public watering trough and drinking fountain to be erected in the public square; Provided the said trough and fountain be of such style as to be an ornament to the square and of creditable appearance and be provided with automatic cut off cocks or bibbs that will stop the flow of water when not in actual use. In witness whereof the Town Council of the Town of Bloomsburg has by its president and secretary caused the seal of the said town to be here-unto affixed: and the Bloomsburg Water Company has by its President and secretary caused the seal of said company, a body corporate, to be here-unto affixed. Signatures.

On motion the contract was approved and president and secretary authorized to execute the same.

Council adjourned to meet Thursday evening February 21st, at 7 o'clock.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Feb. 18, 1889.

The Renaissance of Ginghams. Whence come the color ideas of the period? From France? Yes, more than from elsewhere. The very name "Gingham" tells of India, the land that gave the fabrics to the uses of the world. The value of the word broadens as the stuff becomes the expression of the notions of Scotch and Yankee brains. Two prosaic Nations. They sail the seas in company; one is hard-headed, the other quick witted, but who shall charge lack of imagination against either when the Ginghams of the day are in view?

Ginghams? In days past a word; but now the hop, the four-in-hand, the eight-oared bargne the casino—whatever places lithe, graceful figures, dainty girls frequent in Summer—are first in thought. These are the Gingham-graced places.

And this year will go down to posterity as "the great Gingham year."

Over one thousand distinct Patterns are now on our shelves.

The time of the showing of the Ginghams has indeed come. Prices 20c to 60.

There's a new departure in Black Dress Stuffs. The've been taking on fresh beauties. Advance guard of the sensation army has just come to the counters like scattering raindrops before a storm.

Think of a corded-stripe Silk-and-wool Henrietta! or of a solid-stripe Wool Henrietta! And with none of the familiar, favorite Henrietta graces or uses lost!

Black Cashmeres can be had with graduated cluster stripes or solid stripes. The pretty Railway Cords (hair-line cords lengthwise the silk-and-wool stuff) come in two grades, $1 and $1.25.

One of the most striking of the new Blacks has faille silk stripes between lines of hemstitching, on a Camel-hair Grenadine ground. $1.50, width 24 inches. A still richer one has satin ottoman stripes, $1.75.

Lightning has struck twice in one spot.

Five months ago we told you of 65 cent colored heavy-weight French Cashmere at 50 cents. A most unlikely happening. All we could get went over the counters about as fast as yards could be measured and cut. What wonder? They were from the looms of one of the best Cashmere makers in the world. 'Twas like giving 65 cents in gold for half a dollar.

But here it is again! The same weight Cashmere, from the same maker, and again at 50 cents.

Not a whisper of the maker's name. That's part of the trade. But if you know the best colored Cashmeres you wont guess more than twice. No better goods of the weight can be had at any price.

40 inches, spring shades.

A few of the many bargains in our Muslin Underwear:

For $1. A muslin Gown, plaited and tucked, trimmed with edging and insertion. The best for the money in our stock this season. A portion of this lot has double edging at neck aud very fine plaiting on the yoke.

For $1.50. Two lots, one of them with very elaborate embroidery, and the other with double edging on neck front and sleeves.

An assortment of 12 styles at $1.25 to $1.75. The items referred to would make a gown stock of themselves. They are, however, but a trifle of the whole.

Incompleteness is an unknown word in our Muslin underwear.

HON. J. P. BASS,

now President Eastern Maine State Fair Association, ex-Mayor of Bangor, business man and capitalist, is one of the best known men in Maine. He had, not long ago, a severe attack of dyspepsia which took him from all business, placing him under treatment. He went South and West in search of health, but failed to find it. Could eat no solid food, and became reduced in flesh from 160 to 118 pounds. Spent thousands of dollars, still no relief. At this time met Dr. Brown, who had just returned from Europe. The latter undertook a cure.

He expanded and strengthened the walls of the stomach of the patient; cleansed them of the foreign accumulations; reduced that "gnawing sensation;" revived the liver and kidneys, exciting them to a healthy action, and toned up the blood until Mr. Bass began to regain former good health. Under this treatment he became entirely well, and that year, in connection with Hon. Geo. B. Loring and other officials of the New England Fair Association, managed their great fair. Mr. Bass says Dr. Brown used nothing in his case but

TAXPAYERS' WHAT BECOMES OF YOUR MONEY?

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

According to the official report of the Board of public Charities, made to the last Legislature of Pennsylvania, there were, in 1885, 850 criminals sentenced to the Eastern and Western Penitentiaries. Of these, only 176 were total abstainers. A little over 79 per cent., 664, had been addicted to the use of alcholic drinks. (Page 42.)

In 1885 2,706 were sentenced to the county prisons and work-houses of the State. Of these 396, less than 16 per cent., were total abstainers, 2,095 were in the habit of using alcoholic stimulants; 215 were reported whose habits were unknown. (Page 63.)

During the year ending September 30 1885, 22,792 were cared for in the almshouses of the State. (Page 234.) Of those remaining at the close of the year, 12,534, only 1,603 were reported as total abstainers; 4,401 were addicted to the use of alcholic drinks, 6,530 were reported as "unknown," showing great carelessness on the part of the managers in answering an official question. This does not include the 62,085 tramps assisted, most of whom are addicted to strong drink.

The cost of supporting these wards of the State, over and above all their earnings, is as follows: Eastern and Western Penitentiaries, 135,036.26; County prisons and work-houses,$472,302.50; Alms-houses $1,361,204 18, making a total of net loss, $1,968,542.94, nearly two millions. Of this immense sum the State paid $73,925.000, and the several counties $1,794,617,94. The cost of maintaining the criminals and paupers reported as total abstainers was only $255,443.59, leaving the net loss to the counties for the support of intemperate criminals and paupers the enormous sum of one million six hundred and thirty-nine thousand one hundred and seventy four dollars and thirty-five cents.

The revenue from the liquor traffic for 1885, all of which was paid into the State Treasury, was as follows: tavern licenses, $12,528.05; bottlers licenses, $8,656.96, making a total of $789,203.01. From this the State paid $73,920.00 tax of salaries of employees in the penitentiaries, and $270,000.00 for building purposes, making a total of $343,925.00. The buildings would not have been needed but for the excess of criminals as a result of drunkenness. If, however, the remainder of the sum, $445,273.01, had been turned over to the counties, there would still have been a net loss of $1,193,896 34. But this sum was not turned over to the counties, therefore taxpayers, from their hard earnings, paid for the support of the drinking class of paupers and criminals, $1,629,174 35.

Taxpayers, has not the time come to put a stop (by Constitutional Prohibition.) to this immense waste!

Let all the people answer. "Millions for Homes, Factories and Schools—not one cent for saloons."

A New Lease of Life.

The aged and weak have declared after using Speer's Port Wines that they felt as though they had a new lease of life by having their system renovated by this pure strengthening wine made by Alfred Speer of Passaic, N. Lunacy Invades a School.

PUPILS IN A PENNSYLVANIA INSTITUTE ATTACKED BY A STRANGE MALADY.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 7.—A strange species of insanity has attacked the pupils in the Soldier's Orphan School at McAlisterville. This village is an out-of-the-way place eight miles from Mifflintown, Juniata County, and it is difficult to obtain a complete account of the malady. It appears that the children there have been attacked by a kind of nervous insanity, if such a thing can be. It is most apparent among the boys, twenty five of whom are badly affected.

When the trouble was noticed all the physicians in the neighborhood were summoned, and Dr. Lucien Banks of this place, remained at the school from 10 o'clock last night until this afternoon. He says he is utterly unable to account for the action of the boys. They were bright and happy, but a day or so ago they began picking at their clothing or at the clothing of their fellow pupils in a nervous sort of way, as insane people sometimes do in asylums. When engaged in conversation they talked fast enough, but unintelligibly.

At last a physician took one of them aside and began interrogating him.

"What is this?" said the doctor, holding up a knife.

"Tadpole," was the reply.

"What fruit do you like best?"

"Lizard," the lad answered.

Another boy was taken into a hall and his fur cap thrown away.

"Oh! why did you throw out my overshoes," was what he said, the sentence being mumbled.

The children have vacant expressions on their faces and at times are worse than others.

The school building is a four-story structure, with high porches on each side, and opposite is a three story building, and they are surrounded by large orchards. J. M. Sherwood is principal, Annie McKillip is matron, and C. A. Widde Superintendent. There sixty pupils in the primary department. Heretofore a few cases of gastric fever were the only sickness reported.

Members of the State Lunacy Committee declined to express any opinion before a personal investigation. Dr. Ourt doubted that there was any mental disorder, as insanity is not contagious, but he said there might be some significance in the fact that the trouble was confined to the boys and not to the girls.

What "Peculiar" Means.

Applied to Hood's Sarsaparilla, the word Peculiar is of great importance It means that Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from other preperations in many vital points which make it a thoroughly honest and reliable medicine. It is peculiar, in a strictly medicinal sense: first, in the combination of remedial agents used; second, in the proportion in which they are prepared; third, in the process by which the active curative properties of the medicine are secured. Study these points well. They mean volumes. They make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar in its curative powers, as it accomplishes wonderful cures hitherto unknown, and which give to Hood's Sarsaparilla a clear right to the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered."

The President's Inauguration

HALF RATES AND FINE SERVICE BY THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

Present indications foreshadow the most brilliant inaugural demonstration ever known on the installation of President-elect Harrison, March 4th next. The entire country is interested in the event, and every State of the Union will be represented in the grand parade. Civilians, military, civic, and political bodies will make this the greatest pageant ever seen in the national Capital. The ball will be the most brilliant affair of the kind ever held, and the entire demonstration will be conducted on a scale of magnificence never before attempted. Thousands of people will visit Washington during this period as participants or spectators, and the Pennsylvania Railroad is making preparations to carry them there, and return them in the promptest and most satisfactory manner. It will undoubtedly be the heaviest job ever undertaken by the company, yet with its enormous equipment, excellent facilities, and masterly management, the task will be accomplished to the satisfaction of all. For the day preceding and that succeeding the 4th, the rails leading into Washington will be hot with thousands of wheels, and as all trains will be run in as many sections as the demands of travel require, there will be between New York and Washington a continual procession of locomotives and cars moving steadily forward to their destination. In order to utilize all the cars, and to prevent any blockage of the tracks, no cars will be stored on sidings in or near Washington as other lines propose to do.

The trains will be kept moving all the time, and having deposited their contents in the centre of the city the cars will be immediately run back, to be again loaded with a part of the vast throng which will crowd into all the stations of the company. In this manner the work will be done promptly and effectively, and the great number of trains will enable every one to reach the capital at a seasonable hour.

In case the hotels and lodging houses of Washington should be unable to accomodate the visitors, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from Washington to Baltimore February the 25th to March 4th, good for return trip until March 7th, at $1.20.

The excursion rate fixed for this occasion is a single fare for the round trip, and tickets at that rate will be sold from all stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad system from February 25th to March 4th, valid for return trip until March 7th.

Visitors who desire to extend their trip to Richmond can also purchase excursion tickets in Washington on March 1st to 7th, good to return until March 7th, inclusive at $4.40 for the round trip.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.—If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion preparation, curative power superior to any other article of the kind before the people. For all affections arising from impure blood or low state of the system it is unequalled. Be sure to get Hood's.

A Dog's Earnings.

Old Nero, the mammoth bull dog belonging to A. J. McDonald, of this place, is earning $10 a month in McPhee & Michel's logging camp. He totes dinners to the men and does his work as well as a cookee with a pony could do it. He knows when it is time to be around, and nothing can keep him from being at camp, ready to be loaded down, at 11 o'clock. Nero is a monster, and the camp can rest at night in perfect safety from any kind of a foe. He can whip all comers in the shape of dogs, and he would tackle a bear with all the confidence in the world.—Rhinelander (Wis.) New North.

A Kentucky Hermit.

A curious hermit has been discovered in Russell county, Ky. He lived in a rude hut of the most primitive construction. He is very tall, and about 60 years of age. His clothing consisted of a few rags tied around his person with strings, and his feet were naked and badly frostbitten. All that he would tell about himself was that he was "Jim Billy." He had often been seen by hunters, but always eluded pursuit. He was secured and taken to the county seat, where he will be cared for.—New York World.

Keep the Congregation Awake.

The first duty of a preacher is to keep the congregation awake. Instruct the sexton to let in plenty of fresh air. Without air, without life. Break out a few of those stained glass windows and admit the sunshine! Darkness always provokes a yawn.—Clergyman in St. Louis Republic.

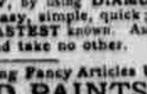

Henry Golding, colored, who lives near Leary, Ga., claims to be 121 years old. He says that he was 9 years old at the commencement of the revolutionary war. He belonged at the time to George Humphreys, of Richmond, Va. Humphreys sold him to George Heard, of Augusta, who had owned him ten years when the "stars fell."

In Switzerland cars are run up to a hotel 2,800 feet above the lake level by rope traction, the drum being worked by electric motors which are driven by dynamos two and a half miles distant, where there is sufficient water power to turn turbine wheels.

Of three women living in one house in Walker county, Ga., there are two wives, two mothers-in-law, two daughters-in-law, three mothers, two grandmothers and one greatgrandmother.

Something New in Leather.

Persons on the outlook for odd things in the way of foot gear have something new in leather in what is called by the trade Kordofan. This is really horse hide, a small part of the skin from the rump of each animal being available for the shoes. It is said to be pleasant to wear, and to last forever or thereabouts. The supply comes from the wild horses of South America and from the zebra and quagga of Asia. The demand is not yet so extensive as to threaten the extermination of those species.—New York Sun.

An Attack of Gravel.
The Terrible Suffering of a Woman at 60.—How She was Happily Cured.

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. My troubles began in my kidneys and from which I never expected to recover. First there were pains in my back, I was feverish, with no appetite and could not sleep, I was compelled to use a cane, and finally got so weak that I could not stand alone. The distress in my back was terrible. I was burning up with a fever or constantly shivering as if cold. My physicians said which was alarming information. To add to my affliction after I had been ill about two years, I had a bad attack of Gravel. When this made its appearance my physician gave up my case, and I resigned myself to die. I had four doctors attend me, the best in the country, yet I constantly grew worse. Six years ago last June, how well I remember the time! I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using one bottle I threw away my cane and went to New York on a visit, and three bottles cured me. I have never had a return of Gravel, nor of the pains or weakness in the back, and though I am over sixty years of age I am as I was in my prime. I do all my own work, and rarely know what it is to be tired. I keep the medicine in the house and give it to my grandchildren, and recommend it whenever I can. What physicians and all of the various remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did—it stayed the disease, and made me a strong, vigorous woman.

I HAD BRIGHT'S DISEASE,

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache. Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 2902 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

Jack.

Jack was one of the train of mules with which the earl of Dunraven made an excursion in the Yellowstone park a few years ago. It is not often that a mule gets so good a character from his master as Jack receives, but it was well earned.

Jack would ascertain, by some means best known to himself, the exact width of his pack, and would measure his distance between the trees to an inch, running through apertures that looked far too narrow for him, but never striking or getting jammed. He had some extraordinary method also of determining the height of his pack, and could tell precisely whether he could pass under an overhanging bough without stooping, and, if not, how much he would have to stoop.

If necessary, without pausing for a moment in his trot, he would double down until his belly almost touched the ground, and wriggle himself through under a fallen tree in the most ludicrous manner.

It is no easy task for a man, even though he be accustomed to the mountains and the forests, to make his way through the matted labyrinth of these primeval woods; but through such places, if they were practicable at all, Jack would run, jump, climb or crawl, picking his way without pause.

His faculty of stooping under branches, though very useful at times, was inconvenient when he was required as a riding animal. He would forget for a moment that he had not a tall pack upon his back, and in passing under some leaning tree, to avoid which the rider would merely stoop his head, not expecting for a moment that the mule would stoop also, down he would go, and with a twist and wriggle of his body writhe himself under the supposed obstacle, much to his rider's surprise and discomfort.—Youth's Companion.

Getting Even.

When the "Tin Soldier" was done in Chicago for the first time I played the plumber. Eugene Field was present and seemed to enjoy the performance immensely. Next day he gave the piece a very flattering criticism, and said that all the people played their parts well with a single exception. The actor who played the plumber seemed to have no conception of what the author intended. I had to good naturedly take the general laugh at my expense and foot up the bill for numerous "smiles," whose combined frequency was sufficient to make a very respectable laugh. I determined to get back at Field. He is as well known and as familiar a figure in Chicago as Col. Ochiltree is in New York. On the following evening I had him occupy a box at the theatre. In one of my scenes I took a copy of The News, and advancing to the front, pretended to read. "Gen. Field's Sharps and Flats," I said, as if just coming to the column of his bright exploitations. Then, with a broad smile, I apparently continued reading. After a while the smile gradually faded, and was succeeded by an expression of positive pain. The paper was thrown to the floor, and, with a very tired expression, I threw back the lapel of my coat and rang a chestnut bell. The chestnut bell was something new in Chicago then, and the little piece of business went tremendously. Field's box was so situated that he could not withdraw from the view of the house, and he had to take the laugh like a good fellow. The "Tin Soldier" has made on an average about $24,000 a season.—Charles H. Hoyt.

Careless Talking.

What grave errors are frequently committed through mere thoughtlessness. If we could foresee the pain that is often caused by lightly spoken words, how much more careful would we be in weighing their significance before uttering them! One of the gravest errors of the kind I have ever known occurred the other day. I had called at the office of one of our leading citizens on a matter of business. He had just returned from a visit to his old home, where he had been attending to the sad duty of burying a near and dear relative, and as we sat talking about the business affair that engaged our attention a friend of the leading citizen walked in, shook him warmly by the hand and asked him when he had got back. Their mutual greetings were warm and cordial until the caller wound up his by exclaiming, thoughtlessly, no doubt, and without for a moment appreciating how apropos was the remark: "Hope you had a good time." I shall never forget the look which passed across the face of the afflicted man as, without replying, he waved his visitor to a seat and resumed his conversation with me. I thought to myself, if that man knew what a mistake he had made he would be more careful in future of speaking without thinking.—Chicago Journal.

The Oil Cartridges.

The power which petroleum exerts in calming the surface of a troubled, even tempestuous ocean, is conceded by the most conservative navigators. However efficient petroleum may be in rousing a storm on land and generating a cyclone in every oil exchange of the United States, on the briny deep its influence is wholly in the direction of peace and quietness and restfulness. It lulls King Neptune's stormiest moods, and a few gallons have brought gallant ships safely through watery commotions that threatened them with sure submerging. Heretofore a simple throwing or dripping of oil from the ship has been the method pursued. Now a Yankee inventor has patented an oil cartridge, which, fired from a gun, projects the oil far in advance of the vessel and thereby stills the waves before the ship. By means of these cartridges, it is claimed that a serene path an eighth of a mile wide can be made through the heaviest seas. Those that go down to the sea in ships owe much to the memory of Col. Drake, of Pennsylvania.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Victorian age, according to Professor Ayrton, will be remembered rather for the economical transmission of power by electricity than for the invention of the electric telegraph.

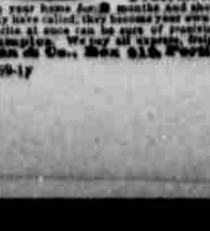

TATE SPRINGS, TENN., July 4, 1888.
The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

During the spring of 1871, while working in the field at my home in Morgan county, Ga., I pulled off my shoes to give my feet a rest. Unfortunately, I walked into a clump of poison oak, and in a few days my feet were in a terrible condition, and I could not put on a shoe because of the soreness and swelling. I was treated as poison oak cases usually are, and everything was healed up. About the same time the following spring, 1872, my feet became sore again, as at first, and every succeeding spring for five years brought back the same condition of the disease, only each time it became more distressing, because I began to think it was a lifetime trouble. Finally, I was induced to try Swift's Specific. I took six bottles, and to-day am entirely well. My improvement was gradual from the first, and no evidence of the disease remains. I shall take pleasure in testifying as to its curative properties. It is the greatest blood purifier in existence. Yours truly, J. L. MORGAN.

The foregoing certificate is taken at random from thousands of letters in possession of the Swift Specific Co., and presented simply as a sample. It is a voluntary statement, giving facts and results of the case. Its accuracy and genuineness are beyond question.
